Academy for Leaders

Reflect on who you are as a leader & ignite your courage to lead from within

It takes courage to walk your talk and sustain your passion when you're working so hard to improve the world – whatever your worthy cause is. Pressures come from every which way. When you're true to yourself, and true with others, that authenticity translates into trust. And trustworthy relationships translate into more effective, wholehearted leaders, teams and results.

This program is for you if:

- You need courage to bring your voice and integrity to your work – and would value not only new practices, but also a new way of being more present and resilient.
- You want to take your leadership to the next level and you're game for the challenge of introspection toward self-growth, trusting it benefits others.
- You are rethinking how you want to offer your leadership to the world, whether you've just been assigned a new position or are in transition with your life and work.
- You would appreciate the peer support of diverse leaders who want to bring their whole selves to the hard work of solving complex social issues.
- You resonate with the Circle of Trust® approach and the ideas of Parker J. Palmer – or you see the potential and want to know more.

Leadership:

Rick Jackson and Valerie Brown, facilitators prepared by the Center for Courage & Renewal.

“Consciousness, yours and mine, can form, deform, or reform our world. Our complicity in world-making is a source of awesome and sometimes painful responsibility, and a source of profound hope for change. It is the ground of our common call to leadership, the truth that makes leaders of us all.”

—Parker J. Palmer

This retreat is based on the work of author/educator/activist Parker J. Palmer and the Center for Courage & Renewal, an educational nonprofit that exists to nurture personal and professional integrity and the courage to act on it.
